Flip the page to see the cover of our special edition on the Christchurch attacks
From horror to hope
How Kiwis inspired the world to defy hate
When news of a mass shooting at two mosques in Christchurch, New Zealand, broke on March 15 last year, New Zealanders around the world were left in a state of shock. Reading the dramatic events of that day, those who were not together but were in touch, knew what the people in Christchurch were going through. The shock was real, and it was shared by the New Zealand community globally.

Christchurch remembered

One year on

Whānau (family)

Commemorative issue

The Kiwi connection

A year after the Christchurch mosque attacks, Arabs, Muslims and Kiwis came together in Dubai to recall the shocking events and reveal how their ties were strengthened in the face of violent intolerance.

4:30 p.m.

New Zealand's "darkest day"

Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern speaks during a press conference following the mosque attacks. She addressed the nation and led a moment of silence for the victims. Police were at the scene.

10:40 p.m.

Grieving families of the victims of the mosque attacks meet to support each other. They grieve the loss of loved ones and the sense of grief.

1:47 p.m.

A woman named Grace is an survivor of the attack. She talks about her experience and the emotional toll it has taken on her and her family.

1:36 p.m.

Relatives of the victims and their loved ones gather to remember those who lost their lives in the attack. They express their grief and pay tribute to the victims.

12:32 p.m.

New Zealand's "darkest day"

Prime Minister Ardern speaks during a press conference following the mosque attacks. She addressed the nation and led a moment of silence for the victims. Police were at the scene.

10:40 p.m.

Grieving families of the victims of the mosque attacks meet to support each other. They grieve the loss of loved ones and the sense of grief.

1:47 p.m.

A woman named Grace is an survivor of the attack. She talks about her experience and the emotional toll it has taken on her and her family.

1:36 p.m.

Relatives of the victims and their loved ones gather to remember those who lost their lives in the attack. They express their grief and pay tribute to the victims.

12:32 p.m.

New Zealand's "darkest day"

Prime Minister Ardern speaks during a press conference following the mosque attacks. She addressed the nation and led a moment of silence for the victims. Police were at the scene.

10:40 p.m.

Grieving families of the victims of the mosque attacks meet to support each other. They grieve the loss of loved ones and the sense of grief.

1:47 p.m.

A woman named Grace is an survivor of the attack. She talks about her experience and the emotional toll it has taken on her and her family.

1:36 p.m.

Relatives of the victims and their loved ones gather to remember those who lost their lives in the attack. They express their grief and pay tribute to the victims.

12:32 p.m.

New Zealand's "darkest day"

Prime Minister Ardern speaks during a press conference following the mosque attacks. She addressed the nation and led a moment of silence for the victims. Police were at the scene.

10:40 p.m.

Grieving families of the victims of the mosque attacks meet to support each other. They grieve the loss of loved ones and the sense of grief.

1:47 p.m.

A woman named Grace is an survivor of the attack. She talks about her experience and the emotional toll it has taken on her and her family.

1:36 p.m.

Relatives of the victims and their loved ones gather to remember those who lost their lives in the attack. They express their grief and pay tribute to the victims.

12:32 p.m.

New Zealand's "darkest day"

Prime Minister Ardern speaks during a press conference following the mosque attacks. She addressed the nation and led a moment of silence for the victims. Police were at the scene.

10:40 p.m.

Grieving families of the victims of the mosque attacks meet to support each other. They grieve the loss of loved ones and the sense of grief.

1:47 p.m.

A woman named Grace is an survivor of the attack. She talks about her experience and the emotional toll it has taken on her and her family.

1:36 p.m.

Relatives of the victims and their loved ones gather to remember those who lost their lives in the attack. They express their grief and pay tribute to the victims.